Project Description

The Hindu Temple is a 35,088 square foot worship facility on two floors. The temple members had out grown an existing building located on a 5.86 acre parcel located in a residential district. The temple wanted to develop the new temple on the same property, and at the same time continue to use their existing building. Boss Engineer had to then develop a plan to meet their growing needs, but at the same time have two separate buildings on one property. The design included underground storm water detention, utility design, extensive landscape design to buffer Temple from adjacent existing residence, lighting photometrics design and Cherry Hill Road improvements design.
